

---

Returning Home and Remembering

Vrnitev Domov In Spominjanje

Mojca Kasjak, Andreja Kopač & Alenka Vidrih

This paper explores 'returning to the origin' as a process of reconnecting with the suppressed yet inherent authenticity of the human being. During the Covid-19 pandemic, the artistic process supported by arts therapy revealed a dual relationship with oneself and others—observing from a distance while longing for closeness, belonging, and wholeness. Return is understood as an inner movement back to oneself, to the fundamental mode of being as home, and to the body as the source of genuine experience. Embodiment thus represents a universal return to self, fostering renewed connection with oneself, the community, and the world.

The qualitative research, conducted during the Covid-19 pandemic and over the three years following the performance, highlights the importance of interweaving artistic-creative and art-therapeutic processes in work with young people, particularly when addressing topics that require sensitive engagement. The first phase (2020–2021) demonstrated the positive effects of the creative process on participants during Covid-19: reduction of anxiety, strengthened sense of connection, and enhanced opportunities for self-expression. Based on kinesthetic interviews and embodied memory, the second phase of the research (2023) identified long-term contributions such as the development of deeper self-confidence, boundary setting, shifts in internalization and sensory awareness, new insights, acquisition of tools for artistic and personal growth, self-recognition, and transformation.

A key contribution is recognizing the role of the arts therapist. Professional collaborators, skilled both in art and therapy, played a central role, as did the participants, along with their prior creative experiences and inherent artistic potential. This highlights the triangulated relationship and the importance of both the artistic process and the artwork itself in the work of the therapist.

---

Keywords:

Creative process, arts therapy, return, embodiment, embodied memory

Biography

Mojca Kasjak is an independent artist, dancer, choreographer and dance teacher, trained at the London Contemporary Dance School, UK. She is the artistic director of dance festival in Slovenia and the founder and director of the private Institute for Contemporary Dance Arts, Creativity. Kasjak has created numerous projects, performances, workshops, and professional seminars. She holds a master's degree in Arts Therapy from the University of Ljubljana, where she is an assistant in dance expression. In 2020, she received a state plaque for her contributions to Slovenian dance culture and pedagogy. She was also a national dance selector.

Andreja Kopač, PhD, is a publicist, professor, editor, mentor, and dramaturge in the field of contemporary dance and theatre. She works as a professor at the Secondary School for Preschool Education, Grammar School and Art Grammar School in Ljubljana (Theatre and Dance Department), as well as at AMEU – Academy of Dance in Ljubljana.

Alenka Vidrih, Associate Professor, is an artist and researcher in the interdisciplinary field of performing arts in education and therapy, and a professor at the Faculty of Education, University of Ljubljana. She serves as a coordinator for the European Consortium for Arts Therapies Education (ECArTE). Since 2011, she has been the head of the master's programme Arts Therapy at the Faculty of Education, University of Ljubljana.

Recent Publications

Kasjak, M. (2021). The World of the Sea. In N. Meško & V. Geršak (Eds.), A Hint for Movement: A Manual with Suggestions for Creative Movement Workshops (pp. 105–107). Public Fund of the Republic of Slovenia for Cultural Activities.

Meško, N., Geršak, V., Pikalo, P., Rupnik, V., & Kasjak, M. (2011). Dance Art. In N. Bucik (Ed.), Cultural and Arts Education: A Manual with Examples of Good Practice from Kindergartens, Primary and Secondary Schools – Updated Online Edition (pp. 255–270). Ministry of Education and Sport; National Education Institute of the Republic of Slovenia.

<http://www.zrss.si/kulturnoumetnostnavzgoja/publikacija.pdf>

---

Kopač, A. DIGITISATION OF MOVEMENT (2014): HIDDEN POTENTIALS OR A RACE AGAINST TIME?

Kopač, A. (2018). Fearlessness and the One-Hundred-Year History of Slovenian Contemporary Dance. Book of Abstracts, p. 280. https://dance-academy.almamater.si/wp-content/uploads/2020/06/Dr.-Andreja-Kopa%C4%8D-558-568\_compressed.pdf

Vidrih, A. and Potočnik, R. (eds.) (2022) Helping through art with vulnerable individuals and groups. 1st ed. ed. Ljubljana: Faculty of Education.

Vidrih, A., (2022) Everything that we can remember: how to create a safe environment through a poetic story - an introduction to forest of lost memories. In: C. Holmwood (ed.) The Routledge international handbook of therapeutic stories and storytelling, The Routledge international handbook of therapeutic stories and storytelling. Routledge, Taylor & Francis Group.pp.382–383.

Vidrih, A., Hram, A. and Poštuvan, V., (2020) The treatment of anorexia nervosa and bulimia nervosa among female adolescents aged 18-21 using intertwined arts therapies. In: S. Hogan (ed.) Arts therapies and gender issues: international perspectives on research, Arts therapies and gender issues: international perspectives on research. Routledge.pp.210–227.

Vidrih, A., Sernec, T. and Filipčič, T., (2019) Dance-movement activities as a form of support for child, with attention deficit hyperactivity disorder. In: T. Filipčič, M. Bilška and R. Vute, eds. Adapted movement activities for the quality of life of all, Adapted movement activities for the quality of life of all. Faculty of Physical Education and Health.pp.193–212.